Obama leads GOP field in Florida

Raleigh, N.C. - Barack Obama starts the general election with a 5 point advantage over Mitt Romney in Florida, 50-45. This is the biggest lead Obama's had in Florida over the course of five polls PPP's done in the state since the beginning of 2011.

The main reason for Obama's enhanced standing in the state is that his own popularity is on the rise. $51 \%$ of voters now approve of him to $45 \%$ who disapprove. His numbers with Republicans are unchanged from the last time we polled the state but he's now getting strong marks from independents (57/37, up from 43/50) and Democrats are unifying around him as the general election approaches (he's at 86/11, up from 73/20).

In the head to head with Romney Obama wins independents 53-34, while each candidate gets a pretty even amount of support from his own party with Obama at $84 \%$ of the Democratic vote and Romney at $83 \%$ of the GOP vote. Obama is up 69-21 with young voters and 52-37 with Hispanics.

We also looked at how four prominent Florida Republicans- Jeb Bush, Marco Rubio, Allen West, and Rick Scott- might affect the race as Vice Presidential candidates. Only Bush has a positive impact for Romney, bringing the race within three points at 49-46. Bush continues to be a popular figure in the state with $52 \%$ of voters viewing him favorably to $40 \%$ with a negative opinion.

Rubio's drawn the most attention as a potential Veep pick, but with him on the ticket Romney actually drops from $45 \%$ to $43 \%$ with Obama staying at $50 \%$. There's not much evidence Rubio would be able to draw Hispanic voters to Romney. In the straight Obama/Romney match Obama leads 52-37 with Hispanics and in the Obama/Biden v. Romney/Rubio match Obama still leads 52-37 with Hispanics.
"Barack Obama’s looking very strong in Florida right now," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "That's bad news for the GOP because it's hard to see them winning this fall without the Sunshine State in their column."
PPP surveyed 700 Florida voters from April $12^{\text {th }}$ to 15 th. The margin of error for the survey is $+/-3.7 \%$. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP is a Democratic polling company, but polling expert Nate Silver of the New York Times found that its surveys in 2010 actually exhibited a slight bias toward Republican candidates.
