Obama Grows Lead Over Romney in Iowa, Now Up 10

Raleigh, N.C. - As we're finding in our polling across the country right now voters in Iowa are moving more and more in support of gay marriage to the point where they're now almost evenly divided on the issue. $44 \%$ of voters think it should be legal, while $45 \%$ believe it should be illegal. That represents a six point shift on the margin from when we polled the state in October and found $41 \%$ of voters supportive and $48 \%$ opposed.

Gay marriage has been legal for a few years in Iowa now and 62\% of voters say that it's had no impact on their lives one way or the other. $24 \%$ claim it's had a negative effect while $14 \%$ say it's a positive thing. We've never found a very significant portion of voters in a state that has gay marriage say it's had a bad effect on them.
$71 \%$ of voters support either gay marriage or civil unions with only $27 \%$ opposed to any sort of legal recognition for same sex couples. Even Republicans support some kind of legal recognition by a $52 / 45$ margin.

2014 is a long way off but for now it looks like the race for Governor could be a dog fight. Voters in the state are evenly divided on Terry Branstad's job performance with 43\% approving and an equal $43 \%$ disapproving of him. Branstad would find himself with small lead over 2010 opponent Chet Culver (44-42) or Congressman Bruce Braley (4440). In a clash of the titans between Branstad and his original successor, Tom Vilsack, the Democrat would have the edge by a 46-43 margin. Vilsack has a $45 / 35$ favorability rating six years after leaving office.

Tom Harkin's in a little better shape than Branstad if he decides to run again. He would have a 9 point lead over Congressman Tom Latham (46-37) and an 11 point advantage over Congressman Steve King (48-37). Latham is unknown to a majority of voters in the state while King is unpopular, sporting a $25 / 38$ favorability rating. If Branstad tried to trade up from Governor to the Senate, he would trail Harkin 46-41.

PPP surveyed 1,181 Iowa voters between May $3^{\text {rd }}$ and $6^{\text {th. }}$ The margin of error for the survey is $+/-2.85 \%$. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP is a Democratic polling company, but polling expert Nate Silver of the New York Times found that its surveys in 2010 actually exhibited a slight bias toward Republican candidates.
