Hagan leads all potential challengers

Raleigh, N.C.- PPP's latest poll of North Carolina voters finds a tight, though slightly Democratic-leaning, Senate race brewing for 2014. Senator Kay Hagan, who has a 41% approval rating compared to 42% who disapprove, is leading all likely Republican challengers by margins of 4%-9%. However, she has failed to secure 50% of the vote in any of the hypothetical races, showing this race could get even tighter.

Within the Republican Party, a clear consensus has not yet formed on who should represent them in the Senate race, with the plurality of respondents (27%) saying they were undecided or favored a candidate not listed. Representative Virginia Foxx currently has a clear lead over the rest of the field, taking in 23% of the vote, a good bit above the next most popular contender, State Senator Phil Berger, who received 11%. NC Speaker of the House Thom Tillis and US Representative Renee Ellmers tied for third with 9% of the vote each. The rest of the candidates were, in order, Jim Cain (8%), Greg Brannon (7%), Mark Harris (4%), and Lynn Wheeler (3%).

Unfortunately for Republicans, Foxx looks like one of their less likely options to take Hagan's seat next year. Hagan currently leads Foxx 46% to 39%, including a lead of 48% to 34% with women. Foxx, however, is the preferred choice of independents, leading Hagan by a margin of 41% to 33%. Republicans' second choice, Berger, has slightly better odds, down only 44% to 40% to Hagan, and leading 48% to 32% with independents. However, Berger's unfavorable ratings are higher than his favorable ratings across the board, including a 7%/24% split with independents and a 17%/24% split with Republicans.

"Thom Tillis may officially be in the Senate race now but Republican voters are still shopping around for a different candidate," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "Right now Virginia Foxx is the candidate they would most like to see make the race."

PPP surveyed 500 registered voters between June 12-14, 2013, including 374 Republican primary voters. The margin of error for the overall sample is +/- 4.4% and the margin of error for the Republican primary sample is +/- 5.1%. This poll was not authorized or paid for by any campaign or political organization. PPP's surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
