Hagan leads for reelection, benefits from Legislature's unpopularity

Raleigh, N.C.- The biggest winner coming out of the North Carolina legislative session might be Kay Hagan. She leads her two most likely Republican opponents, Thom Tillis and Phil Berger, by 8 points each at 47/39.

Beyond that though it's clear that the actions of the General Assembly this year make voters hesitant to give either of their legislative leaders a promotion. 49% of voters say they're less likely to support the Speaker of the House for the Senate because of what happened during this session to only 19% who are more likely to. And 41% are less likely to support the President Pro Tem of the State Senate for the US Senate, to 18% who are more likely to.

“North Carolina voters are disgusted with the state legislature,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “That puts Kay Hagan in a good position since her opponent is likely to be one of its leaders.”

Hagan has leads of 7-11 points against her other potential opponents as well. Jim Cain comes closest with a 7 point deficit at 46/39, followed by Greg Brannon (47/38), Virginia Foxx (48/39), and Mark Harris (46/37) with 9 point deficits, Heather Grant with a 10 point gap at 47/37, and Lynn Wheeler with an 11 point one at 47/36.

Virginia Foxx remains the top choice of North Carolina Republicans to be their candidate next year amidst renewed speculation that she might be interested in a bid. 18% of Republicans say she'd be their top choice for a candidate to 9% each for Phil Berger and Jim Cain, 8% for Thom Tillis, 7% for Greg Brannon, 4% for Heather Grant and Mark Harris, and 2% for Lynn Wheeler.

Voters continue to have mixed feelings about Kay Hagan- 42% approve of her with 41% disapproving. But with a weak Republican candidate field and the prospect of getting to run against the leaders of a very unpopular legislature, she continues to have pretty large leads for reelection.

PPP surveyed 600 registered voters, including an oversample of 344 Republican primary voters, between August 8-11, 2013. The margin of error was +/- 4.0% for the overall survey and +/-5.3% for the GOP sample. This poll was not authorized or paid for by any campaign or political organization. PPP's surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
