Senator Reed with Large Lead Over Republicans

Raleigh, N.C. – Rhode Island voters have put Democratic Senator Jack Reed in a comfortable position going into next year’s election cycle. When polled against several Republican potentials, he wins by at least 29 points.

Among Rhode Island voters, Senator Jack Reed is currently sitting at an approval rating of 62% which is 3 points higher than that of President Obama (59-36). The highest approval rating of potential Republican candidates for the Senate race next year is Cranston mayor, Allan Fung with 55%. The lowest Republican approval rate is retired baseball pitcher, Curt Schilling, with a 9% favorability and 74% unfavorable rating.

When positioned against Republicans Brendan Doherty, Scott Avedisian, Allan Fung, Don Carcieri and Curt Schilling in the Senate race, Reed wins by 29, 30, 34, 41 and 65 points, respectively. Their overwhelming approval of Democratic Senator Reed could be due to the fact that Rhode Island voters have not chosen a Republican for Reed’s seat since 1930.

“Jack Reed may very well be the least vulnerable Senator in the country up for reelection next year,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling.

Looking at the favorability of their two Representatives for the House chamber, Rhode Island voters chose long time Democrat Jim Langevin over junior Democrat David Cicilline, 54-20.

Contrasting their high approval of Senator Reed, Rhode Island voters strongly disapprove of assault weapons and the NRA. 64% of voters support banning assault weapons while only 27% oppose the ban.

Voters have a highly unfavorable opinion of the NRA, 56/31. When asked whether they trust President Obama or the NRA on the issue of guns, 59% trust Obama while only 30% trust the NRA.

PPP surveyed 614 Rhode Island voters from January 28th to 30th. The margin of error is +/-4.0%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
