Hagan Leads Grows a Little in Tight Senate Race

Raleigh, N.C. – PPP’s newest North Carolina poll finds Kay Hagan and Thom Tillis are still neck and neck, but Hagan’s lead has increased by 3 points in the last month due in part to continued voter dissatisfaction with the General Assembly.

Hagan currently leads with 39% of the vote to Tillis’ 34%. In May, PPP found Hagan barely ahead with 38% and Tillis at 36%. Third-party candidate Sean Haugh picks up the same 11% from one month ago. Hagan leads among independents with 31% of the vote, compared to 25% for Tillis and 19% for Haugh. Among every age group except 18 to 29 year olds, Hagan leads Tillis by two points. However, Hagan leads among young voters by a 25-point margin, at 46% to 21%.

One factor contributing to Hagan’s increased lead against Tillis is voters’ negative view of the General Assembly. Only 18% approve of the job the General Assembly is doing, with 54% disapproving. This disapproval partially reflects unhappiness with the recent fracking bill passed by the legislature, as 29% support the measure while 38% oppose it.

Furthermore, while Hagan’s approval rating has improved in the last month, Tillis’ favorability has gotten worse by almost the same margin. In May, Hagan’s approval stood at 38% with 49% disapproving of her performance. However, she now was a 42% approval with 46% disapproval, a net change of 7 points. Tillis’ favorability was at a net of negative 16 points in May (30/46) but is now at negative 22 points (23/45).

“Kay Hagan’s lead over Thom Tillis has tended to grow whenever the legislature is in session,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “The question is whether she can sustain any momentum she gets from that after the legislators go home.”

In miscellaneous issues, 58% of North Carolina voters support requiring existing power plants to cut carbon pollution by up to 30%, and 74% would support a bill allowing for the refinancing of old student loans at current rates.

PPP surveyed 1,076 registered voters from June 12th to 15th. The margin of error for the survey is +/- 3.0%. 80% of interviews for the poll were conducted over the phone with 20% interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don’t have landline telephones.
