McCain At Serious Risk of Losing Renomination

Raleigh, N.C. - John McCain's troubles with conservatives have him in a whole lot of trouble for reelection next year. Even among Republican primary voters just 41\% approve of the job he's doing to $50 \%$ who disapprove. Only $37 \%$ of primary voters say they generally support him for renomination, compared to $51 \%$ who say they would prefer someone 'more conservative.'

It's his struggles on the right that have McCain imperiled. He gets narrowly positive reviews from both 'somewhat conservative' (51/37) and moderate (50/44) Republicans. But among those who identify themselves as 'very conservative,' just $21 \%$ approve of the job McCain is doing to $71 \%$ who disapprove.

The good news for McCain is that he does lead all the prospective primary challengers we tested against him in head to head match ups, although some of them would clearly start out as toss ups. McCain leads David Schweikert 40/39, Matt Salmon 42/40, Kelli Ward 44/31, and Christine Jones 48/27. If he survives to the general McCain has leads of 4 to 6 points against the Democrats we tested again him- he's up 40/36 on Fred DuVal, 40/34 on Richard Carmona, and 42/36 on both Ann Kirkpatrick and Kyrsten Sinema. Those numbers may be misleadingly close though- the undecideds in each of those match ups are strongly Republican leaning.

If McCain does lose renomination or eventually decides not to run again all bets are off though. We tested Richard Carmona, as the 2012 nominee, in hypothetical contests against all the Republicans we looked at against McCain in the primary. Salmon, at $43 / 35$, is the only one who leads Carmona. Carmona and Schweikert are tied at 39, and Carmona leads both Ward (39/36) and Jones (42/36) by modest margins.
"The Arizona Senate race is reminiscent of Indiana in 2012," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling ${ }^{\circledR}$. "John McCain should be fine if he makes it to the general, but like Richard Lugar, unhappiness with him among conservatives could cause him to lose a primary. And if that happens the general election could get interesting."

Public Policy Polling ${ }^{\circledR}$ interviewed 600 Arizona voters, including 300 Republican primary voters, from May $1^{\text {st }}$ to 3rd. The margin of error for the overall sample is $+/-4.0 \%$ and for the Republicans it's $+/-5.7 \%$. $80 \%$ of interviews for the poll were conducted over the phone with $\underline{20 \%}$ interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don't have landline telephones.
