Trump Favored in Missouri; Senate Race Competitive

Raleigh, N.C. - PPP's new Missouri poll finds Donald Trump with a 10 point lead in the state, the same margin that Mitt Romney won by there in 2012. Trump gets $46 \%$ to $36 \%$ for Hillary Clinton, with Gary J ohnson at $7 \%$ and Jill Stein at 1\%. In a head to head match up Trump leads 50/40- voters going third party right now would pretty evenly move to Clinton and Trump if they had to choose one of the two.

The spread between Clinton and Trump in Missouri being the same as the spread between Obama and Romney was in the state is something that's popping up pretty consistently in our polling right now. We're generally finding a picture that's pretty similar to the last time around:

| State | Most Recent Poll | 2012 Result in State |
| :---: | :---: | :---: |
| National | Clinton 45, Trump 41 (D+4) | Obama 51, Romney 47 (D+4) |
| Missouri | Trump 46, Clinton 36 ( $\mathrm{R}+10$ ) | Romney 54, Obama 44 (R+10) |
| Arizona | Trump 44, Clinton 40 ( $\mathrm{R}+4$ ) | Romney 54, Obama 45 (R+9) |
| Jowa | Clinton 41, Trump 39 (D+2) | Obama 52, Romney 46 (D+6) |
| New Hampshire | Clinton 43, Trump 39 (D+4) | Obama 52, Romney 46 (D+6) |
| Ohio | Clinton 44, Trump 40 (D+4) | Obama 51, Romney 48 (D+3) |
| Pennsylvania | Clinton 46, Trump 42 (D+4) | Obama 52, Romney 47 (D+5) |
| Wisconsin | Clinton 47, Trump 39 (D+8) | Obama 53, Romney 46 (D+7) |
| North Carolina | Clinton 43, Trump 43 (Tie) | Romney 50, Obama 48 (R+2) |
| Virginia | Clinton 42, Trump 39 (D+3) | Obama 51, Romney 47 (D+4) |

There are a few states with some relatively big differences from 2012- Clinton's doing 4 points worse than Obama did in Iowa, while she's doing 5 points better than he did in Arizona. But on balance the picture ends up looking similar. This isn't going to be the sort of historical landslide for Clinton that some have speculated- but she does have a clear, if modest, overall advantage when you look at it both nationally and in the key battlegrounds.

TP Public Policy Polling

"The polls are all over the place in the Presidential race right now," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "But broadly what we're seeing is an election shaping up very similarly to 2012. On a state by state basis the Clinton/ Trump margin is quite similar to where the Obama/ Romney margin ended up."

Donald Trump and Hillary Clinton are unpopular everywhere but Missouri kind of takes it to a different level. Trump's favorability there is 37/56, while Clinton's is 29/64. With both candidates so disliked it creates an appetite for protest candidates and we find that Deez Nuts gets $8 \%$ as a possible independent candidate in the state, while a Giant Meteor hitting the earth polls at 12\%. Gary J ohnson's support is weak compared to some of the other alternative options.

Missouri continues to have one of the most underrated Senate races in the country. Roy Blunt leads J ason Kander only 41/ 38. That closeness is mostly a product of Blunt's unpopularity. Only 31\% of voters approve of the job he's doing to $42 \%$ who disapprove. One thing that's particularly striking is how poor Blunt's numbers are within his own party- only $49 \%$ of Republicans approve of the job he's doing to $26 \%$ who disapprove. Kander is actually winning more support now from Republicans (13\%) than Blunt is from Democrats (10\%) despite Blunt's far longer presence on the statewide scene. Kander is currently known to only 38\% of voters in the state, so a lot of the direction this goes may depend on how voters feel about him as they get to know him better over the next 4 months. One thing Blunt does have working in his favor is that among undecided voters in the Senate race $47 \%$ are voting for Trump to only $30 \%$ for Clinton so if those folks all ended up voting the same party for Senate that they are for President it would double Blunt's lead to 6 points. At any rate this race probably is deserving of more attention than it's getting.
"The Missouri Senate race might be the most competitive contest in the country that no one's paying attention to," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "Roy Blunt's unpopular and that's put J ason Kander in position to possibly score a big upset."

There are a number of big issues going on nationally right now that may be helping to fuel voter unhappiness with Blunt. There's 84/ 10 support for expanded background checks in the state, with $92 \%$ of Democrats, $81 \%$ of independents, and 79\% of Republicans in agreement with that. There's 81/ 10 support for barring those on the Terror Watch List from buying firearms, with 91\% of Democrats, $77 \%$ of independents, and $76 \%$ of Republicans in favor of that. $59 \%$ of voters in the state want to see Merrick Garland's nomination to the Supreme Court move forward with hearings, to only $22 \%$ who are opposed to them. There's 79/ 6 support with Democrats, 58/ 22 with independents, and 42/37 with Republicans for that. And $71 \%$ of voters in the state want to see the minimum wage raised to at least $$ 10$ an hour, with only $17 \%$ fine with the status quo and another $10 \%$ in support of eliminating the minimum wage altogether.

Blunt is on the wrong side of voters on all of those issues and it could help explain why his approval numbers are in the tank and he's in a surprising amount of trouble for reelection.

The Republican primary for Governor looks pretty up for grabs, with all four candidates within 9 points of each other. Eric Greitens is at 24\%, Catherine Hanaway at 22\%, J ohn Brunner at 16\%, and Peter Kinder at 15\% with 23\% of voters undecided. One thing that stands out about the primary is that the candidates are still pretty undeveloped in voters' minds. Hanaway has 60\% name recognition and that makes her the best known of the candidates, followed by Kinder at 53\%, and Brunner and Greitens each at 52\%. Those numbers indicate that a lot of voters won't give their first real careful thought to the candidates until the final lead up to primary day. One interesting thing in the numbers is that Hanaway and Greitens are actually tied at 23\% with Republicans, but Greitens leads her 29/ 17 with the independents who plan to vote in the GOP primary. In this open primary state, those folks account for a quarter of the electorate and give Greitens his overall narrow advantage.

We also polled on a variety of other state issues, here are some of the highlights:
-92\% of voters in the state think women should receive equal pay for equal work, to only 3\% who are opposed. That has $96 \%$ support from Democrats, $91 \%$ from Republicans, and $90 \%$ from independents.
$-72 \%$ think that all on duty police officers should be required to wear body cameras, to only $16 \%$ who are opposed. That has $83 \%$ support from Democrats, $71 \%$ from independents, and 63\% from Republicans.
-68\% think workers should have the right to collectively bargain for fair wages and benefits, to just $16 \%$ who are opposed to that. That has 85\% support from Democrats, 60\% from independents, and 57\% from Republicans.
-66\% support expanding Medicaid in Missouri, with just 20\% of voters standing against that. That has 87\% support from Democrats, 63\% from independents, and 48\% from Republicans.
-65\% think state employees should get 10 days of paid leave upon the birth or adoption of a child, to only $24 \%$ who are opposed to that. That has $77 \%$ support from Democrats, 64\% from independents, and 52\% from Republicans.
-62\% say they would vote yes on a ballot issue that would legalize marijuana for medical purposes, to only $27 \%$ who say they would vote no on that. That has $74 \%$ support from Democrats, 71\% from independents, and 44\% from Republicans.
$-62 \%$ say they support the Missouri Nondiscrimination Act, which prohibits discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity in employment, housing, and public accommodations. J ust 23\% are opposed to that. That has 84\% support from Democrats, $56 \%$ from independents, and $45 \%$ from Republicans.

And finally we polled some fun stuff in Missouri:
-There's been endless debate both about how Missouri should be pronounced and whether the state is in the Midwest or South. We took those questions to Missourians themselves and the results are pretty emphatic. 80\% say the state should be pronounced Missour-Ee, to only $12 \%$ who think it should be said Missou-Uh. And tracking those results pretty closely, 82\% say think Missouri is a Midwestern state, to only $13 \%$ who consider it to be a part of the South.
-The Kansas City Royals may have won the World Series last year but loyalty to the St. Louis Cardinals is strong enough that there's no large scale bandwagon shifting of team loyalties. 52\% of voters in the state say they're Cardinals fans to $30 \%$ for the Royals, and 5\% for the Cubs. When we polled on this back in 2011 when the Royals were still terrible 50\% of Missourians identified as Cardinals fans but the Royals were at only $21 \%$, so there has been an increase in Royals fandom but it hasn't come at the expense of the Cards. Ned Yost (65/ 7 approval) and Mike Matheny (62/9 approval) are both very well regarded within their fan bases.
-It's safe to say Missouri is done with the Rams. Only 3\% of voters in the state now identify themselves as fans of the team and just 22\% say they hope they'll have a good season this year to 34\% who hope they'll have a bad one and 43\% who say they just don't care one way or another. There really is no second favorite team of Missouri football fans anymore. The Chiefs lead the way at 39\% and from there it's all the way down to 7\% for the Packers, and 6\% each for the Cardinals, Bears, and Cowboys with everyone else polling below $5 \%$.
-Finally we tested attitudes toward a trio of famous Missourians. It's hard to beat Mark Twain for popularity- $86 \%$ of voters in the state have a favorable opinion of him to only $2 \%$ with a negative one. To put those numbers in perspective, in 2011 we found nationally that George Washington had an 86/ 3 favorability rating and J esus Christ was only a touch better at 90/3. Harry Truman has a 75/ 7 favorability spread and interestingly comes out a little bit better among Republicans (79/6) than he does among Democrats (73/6). One Missouri native who doesn't come out so hot is Rush Limbaugh- only 30\% of voters see him favorably to $47 \%$ who have a negative opinion of him. Democrats (9/74) are much more unified in their dislike of Limbaugh than Democrats (56/19) are in their esteem for him.
