Burr Narrowly Leads Marshall, Cunningham

Raleigh, N.C. – Despite improving his job performance ratings from a month ago, Senator Richard Burr is now in a near tie with Elaine Marshall and barely ahead of Cal Cunningham following the May 4 primary.

Marshall now trails Burr only 43-42, versus 43-37 last month. Cunningham lags 44-39 after losing 43-35 in April. Marshall does slightly better with Democrats and independents and about the same with Republicans as Cunningham.

North Carolina voters' opinions of how Burr is handling his job inched upward from a negative 32-41 in early April to 37-40 now. Kay Hagan also went from 34-44 to 36-42. Both improved their margins among independents, Burr from -12 to -1, and Hagan from -27 to -5. Burr also improved slightly among fellow Republicans.

Cunningham has raised his profile slightly more than has Marshall, and voters have broken evenly for and against him since April. Now 16% express a favorable opinion of Cunningham to 18% unfavorable, as opposed to only 5-8 in April. Marshall is still in positive territory, at 23-20, but voters split somewhat against her, from 19-11 last month.

Marshall is a more polarizing candidate, with significantly better favorability numbers with Democrats and much worse numbers with Republicans than Cunningham, but that could be a factor of the impression among both parties' voters that Marshall was the winner of the primary and the inevitable challenger to Burr. PPP will release numbers on the June 22 runoff tomorrow.

“For months Richard Burr’s lead over Elaine Marshall and Cal Cunningham was artificially inflated because of their low name recognition,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “With the primary campaign under their belts both Democrats are now looking very competitive for the fall.”

PPP surveyed 631 North Carolina voters from May 8th to 10th. The survey’s margin of error is +/-3.9%. Other factors, such as refusal to be interviewed and weighting, may introduce additional error that is more difficult to quantify.
