Sullivan grows lead in Alaska GOP primary, Begich up in general

Raleigh, N.C. – PPP's newest Alaska poll finds the Republican primary for Senate becoming increasingly less competitive. Dan Sullivan is now out to a 14 point lead with 40% to 26% for Mead Treadwell, 14% for Joe Miller, and 3% for John Jaramillo. The race has been moving more and more in Sullivan's direction in our polling over the last nine months. In July Treadwell led Sullivan 33/25. Since then Sullivan's support has moved from that 25% mark last summer to 30% in February and now 40%. Meanwhile Treadwell dropped from 33% in July to 25% in February and is now pretty much holding steady with his 26% mark.

Mark Begich leads all of his potential Republican opponents, but the match ups are pretty close across the board. He's up 42/37 on Sullivan with third party candidates combining for 7%, he's up 41/33 on Treadwell with third party candidates combining for 9%, and he's up 43/27 on Miller with third party candidates combining for 6%. Voters are closely divided in their feelings about Begich with 44% approving of him and 45% disapproving.

Begich is staying ahead despite the state's GOP lean because of his strong support from independents. He leads Sullivan by 19 points, Treadwell by 20 points, and Miller by 27 points with them. He also has a more unified party with 76-79% of Democrats saying they'll vote for him, while only 55-70% of GOP voters say they're committed to their potential party nominees for this fall.

“There hasn't been much movement in this race over the last three months,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “Mark Begich has a small lead but the undecided voters aren't friendly toward him, so this is likely to be an extremely close contest in November.”

Sean Parnell is polling at only 37% for reelection as Governor, but with opposition to him split between Democrat Byron Mallott (27%) and independent Bill Walker (17%) it's still enough to give him a double digit lead. Voters in the state are pretty evenly divided on Parnell's performance with 42% approving and 44% disapproving of him.

PPP surveyed 582 registered voters from May 8th to 11th, including 313 Republican primary voters. The margin of error for the overall survey is +/- 4.1%, and for the Republicans it's +/- 5.5%. 80% of interviews for the poll were conducted over the phone with 20% interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don't have landline telephones.
