OF THE PRESS RELEASE*GOP likely to win Arkansas, Kentucky Senate Races; Louisiana Still Close

Raleigh, N.C. – PPP's final polls in Arkansas and Kentucky find Republicans in a strong position to win the Senate seats in those states on Tuesday, but the Louisiana Senate race still has the potential to be pretty competitive.

In Kentucky Mitch McConnell leads Alison Lundergan Grimes 50/42, with Libertarian David Patterson getting 3%. In a head to head match up, McConnell's lead is 53/44. McConnell remains unpopular, with only 39% of voters approving of him to 50% who disapprove. But his campaign succeeded in making Grimes just as unpopular- her 39/49 favorability rating is nearly identical to his approval rating. For the millions and millions of dollars spent on this race it's ended up right back around where it started- when we first polled it in December of 2012 McConnell led Grimes by 7 and in this final poll he leads by 8.

In Arkansas, we find Republicans leading the races for Governor and the Senate by 8-10 points. Tom Cotton is up 49/41 on Mark Pryor, and Asa Hutchinson is up 51/41 on Mike Ross. At the end of the day Barack Obama's unpopularity in the state may be too much for the Democratic candidates to overcome- only 29% of voters approve of the job he's doing to 62% who disapprove. The Republican candidates have proven to be relatively strong in their own right though. Hutchinson has a 49/35 favorability rating and Cotton's is 48/40, better than we're seeing for most candidates across the country this year.

In Louisiana it looks like Mary Landrieu will finish first in Tuesday's election. She's polling at 43% to 35% for Bill Cassidy, 15% for Rob Maness, and just 1% for 'someone else.' We find that a head to head between Landrieu and Cassidy would be pretty close at this point, with Cassidy ahead just 48/47. Whether a runoff election would really be that close depends on whether Landrieu can get Democratic leaning voters, especially African Americans and young people, to come back out and vote again in December.

PPP surveyed 1,003 likely voters in Louisiana, 1,503 likely voters in Kentucky, and 1,092 likely voters in Arkansas from October 30th to November 1st. The margins of error for the surveys are +/-3.1%, +/-2.5%, and +/-3.0% respectively. 80% of interviews for each poll were conducted over the phone with 20% interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don't have landline telephones.
