Obama Barely Ahead in Florida

Raleigh, N.C.-- President Obama's lead in the sunshine state has shrunk from 4 points over challenger Mitt Romney to 1 point, 48% to 47%, since PPP's last survey in the state, conducted in June. Romney has benefited from a significant spike in his favorability rating, from -14 to -3, while Obama's approval rating has turned upside down, reversing from a +3 rating in June to -3. This was PPP's first survey of the state conducted among likely voters.

Independent voters are responsible for much of the change in these numbers, as many have shifted sides in the last month and a half. While unaffiliated voters favored Obama by 9 points in June, they now favor Romney by 7, at 47% to 40%. This group has softened on Romney, who has experienced some pretty dismal favorability numbers this cycle, and now 42% have a favorable view of Romney compared to 48% who see him unfavorably.

Out of the possible Republican vice presidential candidates PPP tested, only two were able to bring Florida into Mitt Romney's column. Senator Marco Rubio brings the most to the Republican ticket, and flips the state's decision to 49% to 47% in favor of Romney. Condoleezza Rice also pulls Romney into the lead, but only by 1 point, 46% to 45%.

All the other potential VPs, the three now considered to be the most likely selections, either hurt the ticket or make no difference. Louisiana Governor Bobby Jindal, the most popular of these three at an even 29% to 29% favorability, brings Obama's lead to +3. Former Minnesota Governor Tim Pawlenty doesn't change the margin at all. Ohio Senator and former Bush aid Rob Portman, who brings the lowest net favorables (-9) and the lowest name recognition (45%) to the ticket, improves Obama's standing to +4.

"Florida looks like it will once again be among the closest states in the country with neither candidate having a clear advantage there," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling.

PPP surveyed 871 likely Florida voters from July 26th to 29th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-3.3%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
