Florida Senate race wide open without Rubio

Raleigh, N.C. – Florida’s 2016 U.S. Senate race is shaping up to be one of the most hotly contested in the country, assuming that incumbent Marco Rubio runs for President.

All but one hypothetical general election matchup is decided by four points or less, excluding those involving Rubio. Established, well-known candidates are largely absent from the field, with just one potential candidate receiving over 60% name recognition.

Republican Attorney General Pam Bondi fares the best against the amorphous field, leading Democratic Congressmen Alan Grayson and Patrick Murphy by three and four points, respectively. Bondi also happens to be the most well-known potential candidate polled, tracking at 70% name recognition.

Murphy, who became the first candidate to officially declare for the race Monday, wins two of his four matchups with Republicans despite just 35% name recognition. His most notable victory comes against former Congressman Allen West, whom he unseated in 2012 by fewer than 3,000 votes.

A Murphy-West re-match is certainly not out of the question, as West is very popular among Florida Republicans. The former Tea Party congressman leads Bondi 38/25 in a hypothetical primary race. State Chief Financial Officer Jeff Atwater places third with 12% of the vote, and Lieutenant Gov. Carlos Lopez-Cantera finishes in fourth with 8%.

But all of that will be for naught in the unlikely event that Rubio foregoes a White House run for a re-election bid. Rubio would likely face little resistance in the primary, and his nine and seven point leads against Grayson and Murphy, respectively, suggest he would easily be considered the front-runner in the general right off the bat.

“It looks like the Florida Senate race will be a toss up if Marco Rubio runs for President,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “Rubio would be favored if he runs again but if it’s an open seat both sides have about an equal chance at it.”

PPP surveyed 923 registered Florida voters, including 425 Republican primary voters and 371 Democratic primary voters, from March 19th to 22nd. The margin of error for the overall survey is +/- 3.2%, it’s +/- 4.8% for the GOP sample, and it’s +/-5.1% for the Democratic sample. 80% of interviews for the poll were conducted over the phone with 20% interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don’t have landline telephones.
