Elizabeth Warren leads Scott Brown by two points

Raleigh, N.C. – Democrats looking for a savior may have found one in Elizabeth Warren. She debuts in the Massachusetts Senate race as the first candidate PPP has found with a lead against freshman Senator Scott Brown over the course of three polls. Warren has seriously upped her name recognition and favorability with voters, but the main driver behind her gain is Brown's own sinking popularity.

Once one of the most popular senators in the country, a Republican in a blue state, it would have taken a nosedive in public favor for Brown to be beaten. And that is exactly what has happened. Early last December, when PPP first looked at the race, 53% approved and only 29% disapproved of his job performance. That fell to 48-36 in June. Only three months later, he sits at 44-45, moving him in only nine months from the 16th to the 61st most popular of 87 senators on which PPP has polled. Brown has only become more popular with the GOP, but they are only 15% of voters. The 45% independent plurality gives him only a 49-39 mark, versus 61-25 in December. And the 40% who are Democrats have moved from 35-41 to 31-52 to 25-65, still pretty good for cross-aisle appeal, but clearly on the wrong trajectory.

Warren, meanwhile, has catapulted in voters' minds very quickly. In June, 21% had a favorable impression of her and 17% an unfavorable one. That is now 40-22.

While Warren leads Brown, 46-44, the other candidates still trail due to lower name recognition. Brown leads Newton Mayor Setti Warren, 47-32; entrepreneur Alan Khazei, 48-33; activist Bob Massie, 49-31; and State Rep. Tom Conroy, 50-31.

“Scott Brown's status has always been a little tenuous as a Republican in a dark blue state and it's starting to catch up to him,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “The launch of Elizabeth Warren's candidacy has been an undeniable success and now she just needs to keep the momentum going.”

PPP surveyed 791 Massachusetts voters from September 16th to 18th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-3.5%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews. PPP is a Democratic polling company, but polling expert Nate Silver of the New York Times found that its surveys in 2010 actually exhibited a slight bias toward Republican candidates.
