Republicans slightly ahead for both Gov. and Sen. in Michigan

Raleigh, N.C. – Democrats who looked a few months ago to be favorites for governor and Senate in Michigan are now on the ropes, casualties of the general dip in favor for Democrats around the country over the Affordable Care Act snafus.

The somewhat popular Terri Lynn Land edges Gary Peters for Senate, 42-40, and still fairly unpopular Gov. Rick Snyder tops Mark Schauer, 44-40. For Peters, that is a seven-point reversal from when PPP polled the state six months ago, when he led Land in a theoretical matchup, 41-36. For Schauer, it is a drop of eight points on the margin; in early June, he led the incumbent, 42-38. He led by four and five points in the two polls before that as well.

In both races, neither Democrat has become more unpopular, with both still fairly unknown (43% name identification for Peters and 36% for Schauer). But both Land and Snyder have upped their numbers. Only 40% approved, and 52% disapproved, of Snyder's performance in June; that is now 42-49, a five-point reversal. Land was at a 29-21 favorability mark in the last poll, and 34-23 now.

Part of the problem for Peters and Schauer is also the president's slide in popularity. What was a 48-47 approval spread in June, already bad in a state he won by nine and a half points, is now 47-51. And his signature legislative accomplishment is seen negatively by a 14-point margin, with 63% saying it has been implemented poorly.

The bright side for Schauer and Peters is they still have plenty of time to improve their name recognition, Snyder is still among the dozen least popular governors in the country, and the political environment should not get much if any worse for Democrats over the next 11 months. Because of their candidates' relative anonymity, more Democrats remain undecided than Republicans, so the gap can be closed.

“The key races in Michigan are reflective of what we're seeing throughout the country right now,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “The political climate has turned sharply against Democrats over the last month and a half.”

PPP surveyed 1,034 Michigan voters from December 5th to 8th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-3.0%. PPP's surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
