North Carolina Voters Disapprove of Republican Legislators

Raleigh, N.C. – North Carolina voters disapprove of the way Republicans are running state government in general and of several of their specific policy proposals. Just 38% of voters say they approve of the job Republicans as a whole are running state government, while 52% disapprove. The General Assembly as a whole fares particularly badly, with just 23% job approval and 49% disapproval. 50% say they have an unfavorable opinion of Republicans in the North Carolina Legislature compared to 36% who hold a favorable opinion. Democrats in the Legislature fare only slightly better, with a 38%-44% favorability rating. Only Governor Pat McCrory himself sees a net positive job approval rating, with 49% approving and 35% disapproving.

The policies North Carolina Republicans are pushing just aren't viewed very favorably by voters: just 36% support a proposed law banning the baring of women's breasts compared to 41% who oppose it; 30% support the Legislature eliminating the earned income tax credit while 42% oppose it; and only 26% support the Legislature blocking the expansion of Medicaid health care coverage to roughly 500,000 North Carolinians while 56% oppose. And fully 68% of voters say they should have the option to vote straight-party ticket if they choose to, while 21% say they should not. As such it may not come as much of a surprise that Democrats lead Republicans in the general ballot for State Legislature: 47% say they'd vote for a Democrat and 41% say a Republican in the next election.

“For a second straight legislative session we are finding that North Carolinians oppose much of the Republican agenda,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “Luckily for Pat McCrory though the unpopularity of his colleagues on Jones Street isn't rubbing off on him yet.”

Voters also say they support banning assault weapons, 50-41, and that they would support Congress passing stricter gun laws in general, 53-38. Senator Richard Burr's job approval rating is 37-37. President Obama's approval rating is 47-50.

PPP surveyed 611 North Carolina voters from March 7th to 10th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-4.0%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
