Obama Holds Narrow Edge in North Carolina

Raleigh, N.C.-- President Barack Obama added a couple of points to his slim margin over Mitt Romney in North Carolina that PPP found in a survey last month, bringing his current lead in the state to 3 points, at 49% to 46%. While Obama picked up two points in his approval rating to bring it to -1, Romney's favorability experienced a drop of 5 points.

Independent voters have warmed up to the President considerably over the past month, turning towards Obama by 12 points, though still favoring Romney by a 48% to 44% mark. Obama's approval rating has also improved among this key demographic, from a scathing -25 in July to -13 today.

This most recent survey includes results among North Carolina's newer residents, asking both if respondents were born in the Tar Heel state and how long they have lived there. Obama's entire margin comes from non native North Carolinians. In this group, the President leads 51% to 45%, while he is tied with Romney among natives at 47%.

Even more telling is Obama's standing with the newest group of NC residents; among those who have lived in the state for 10 years or less, a group that constitutes 11% of the voting population, Obama leads by 39 points. Romney's share of the vote generally increases with length of NC residence, peaking at +14 with those who have lived in North Carolina for 40 years or more.

"North Carolina continues to be one of the closest states in the country," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "Month after month we find Barack Obama and Mitt Romney polling within 3 points of each other."

When possible Vice Presidential candidates are included on the Republican ticket, only favorite son Senator Richard Burr and the exceedingly popular Condoleezza Rice produce positive motion for Romney, with Rice pulling the race into a tie at 47%.

PPP surveyed 813 likely North Carolina voters from August 2nd to 5th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-3.4%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
