North Carolinians Want Nonpartisan Redistricting

Raleigh, N.C. – Redistricting has been the biggest news in North Carolina politics of late and voters across party lines agree- they want the process to change. 59% of voters in the state want the law changed so that districts are drawn in a nonpartisan fashion, compared to only 9% who are opposed to such a move. There's a strong bipartisan consensus on the issue, with Democrats (65/6), independents (56/12), and Republicans (54/11) all thinking there should be a change over to a nonpartisan process.

The race for Governor continues to bounce back and forth between small leads for Pat McCrory and Roy Cooper. This month the incumbent has the slight edge, with McCrory getting 43% to 41% for Cooper. That's thanks largely to McCrory having a 39/33 advantage with independents. The basic contours of the race remain unchanged. McCrory is unpopular, with only 40% of voters approving of him to 47% who disapprove. But Cooper is relatively unknown, with a 46% plurality of voters having no opinion about him one way or another. He has a positive 32/22 favorability among those voters who are familiar with him.

"North Carolina continues to have the most competitive Governor's race in the country," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "Sometimes McCrory's up and sometimes Cooper's up but it's never by more than a couple points either way. This one is likely to go down to the wire."

There's not much intrigue in either party's primary for Governor. McCrory's getting 69% in his primary to 5% for Robert Brawley and 4% for Charles Moss. And Cooper's getting 55% in his primary to 12% for Ken Spaulding. In both cases those numbers are almost identical to what we found last month- there's no indication of the challengers gaining traction. On the extremely off chance Spaulding were to win the primary, McCrory leads him by 12 points at 44/32.

The US Senate race is looking a little bit tighter this month, with Richard Burr leading his prospective Democratic opponents by only 6-7 points. He's up 43/37 on Deborah Ross, and 43/36 each on Kevin Griffin and Chris Rey. The competitiveness of the race is a function of Burr's lack of popularity. Only 29% of voters say they approve of the job he's doing, to 40% who disapprove.

“Richard Burr’s in the potentially vulnerable category right now,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “His approval numbers are mediocre but voters aren’t familiar with his Democratic opponents at all yet. Time will tell whether the eventual nominee is a strong enough candidate to make it a real race.”

One thing Burr doesn’t have to worry about is the Republican primary. He’s at 56% to 13% for Greg Brannon, 4% for Paul Wright, and 3% for Larry Holmquist. Brannon’s not showing any ability to build on his performance in the Republican Senate primary in 2014. Deborah Ross continues to be the front runner on the Democratic side. She’s at 22% to 10% each for Kevin Griffin and Chris Rey, and 2% for Ernest Reeves. 55% of voters remain undecided so there are a lot of people up for grabs in the final four weeks, but among those who have decided Ross is well positioned to win the nomination without a runoff.

Thom Tillis continues to have very little popularity as he continues his second year in the Senate. Only 24% of voters approve of the job he’s doing to 35% who disapprove, with 41% having no opinion about him one way or another. It’s hard to imagine there’s another Senator in the country whose approval is that low-Tillis was unpopular even as he won election because of Kay Hagan’s being even more unpopular, and nothing’s happened in the last year to change that.

We continue to find strong support from North Carolinians for a big increase in the minimum wage. 69% of voters favor upping it to at least $10 an hour, compared to only 17% who think it’s fine where it is right now and 9% who would like to eliminate it altogether. There’s bipartisan support for an increase with 85% of Democrats, 66% of independents, and 53% of Republican supporting a bump to at least $10 an hour.

There’s bipartisan support on two other issues we polled as well. 68% of voters support the EPA’s Clean Power Plan, to only 24% who are opposed to it. That includes support from 86% of Democrats, 63% of independents, and 52% of Republicans. And there continues to be a strong bipartisan mandate for background checks on all gun sales as well. 86% of voters overall support that to only 8% who are opposed, including 92% of Democrats, 85% of independents, and 78% of Republicans.

Public Policy Polling surveyed 1,291 registered voters, including 597 likely Republican primary voters and 575 likely Democratic primary voters, from February 14th to 16th. The margin of error is +/-2.7% for the overall sample, +/-4.0% for the Republicans and +/-4.1% for the Democrats. 80% of participants, selected through a list based sample, responded via the phone, while 20% of respondents who did not have landlines conducted the survey over the internet through an opt-in internet panel.

Q23 The NC state legislature passed a new law last year that allows sitting State Supreme Court justices to run unopposed in a retention election after their term is up. Voters would decide if that justice should continue in an up-or-down vote and not in a traditional contested election. Supporters of the change say it will help get big money out of our judicial elections. Opponents argue that it's an unconstitutional power grab to protect incumbent justices by blocking qualified candidates for running for office and take away the right of voters to elect judges of their choosing. Do you support or oppose the new system of judicial retention elections?

- Support judicial retention elections* ..... 17%
- Oppose judicial retention elections* ..... 42%
- Not sure* ..... 41%

Q24 State Supreme Court Justice Bob Edmunds is up for a retention election in 2016. Before his retention election he is likely to hear a case challenging the constitutionality of retention elections. Do you think Justice Edmunds should recuse himself from the trial, since he would be directly affected by the new law, or not?

- Justice Edmunds should recuse himself from the trial*..... 63%
- Justice Edmunds should not recuse himself from the trial*..... 8%
- Not sure* ..... 28%

Q25 Would you be more or less likely to vote to retain Justice Edmunds if he refused to recuse himself and made a ruling to keep retention elections, which would prevent him from having an opponent for reelection?

- More likely*..... 11%
- Less likely* ..... 49%
- Wouldn't make a difference*..... 22%
- Not sure* ..... 18%

Q26 In the last presidential election, did you vote for Barack Obama or Mitt Romney?

- Barack Obama*..... 45%
- Mitt Romney*..... 47%
- Someone else / Don't remember* ..... 8%
