North Carolinians Strongly Oppose DOJ Cuts; Like Cooper; Down On Trump

Raleigh, N.C. – PPP's new North Carolina poll finds strong, bipartisan opposition to cuts the General Assembly has made to the budget of the North Carolina Department of Justice. Only 18% of voters support the 10 million dollars in cuts that have been made, to 60% who say they are opposed to them. This opposition is shared by independents (9/68), Democrats (18/65), and Republicans (26/48) alike. Concern about the cuts is fueled by a sense that they will have the effect of making the state less safe- 59% of voters believe that will be the outcome of cuts to funding for the DOJ, while only 12% say they think the cuts will make the state safer.

“North Carolinians are infuriated about cuts to the Department of Justice budget,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “They think the cuts are all about partisan politics, and they think the cuts will make the state less safe.”

A plurality of voters- 46%- think the Republicans in the General Assembly made the cuts just because the Attorney General is a Democrat. Only 21% think they did it because it's good for the state, and 33% aren't sure one way or another. This is one of several issues driving the popularity of the General Assembly- and the Republicans in it in particular- into the ground. Only 18% of voters approve of the job the General Assembly is doing, to 58% who disapprove. While the Democrats in the body aren't popular- a 37/46 favorability rating- they come out far better than the Republicans who just 32% of voters see positively, with 55% viewing them in a negative light.

Democrats have an early 46-40 lead on the generic legislative ballot for next year. That includes a double digit lead among independent voters, at 39/29. One thing that's particularly good news for the party is that enthusiasm is on their side- 57% of Democrats say they're 'very excited' to vote in the election next year, compared to only 47% of Republicans who say that. Among just voters who say they're 'very excited' about turning out in 2018, the generic ballot lead for Democrats more than doubles to 13 points at 52/39.

There continues to be a strong bipartisan consensus in support of nonpartisan redistricting in North Carolina. Overall 56% of voters support it, to just 14% who are opposed. Majorities of independents (63/10), Republicans (55/15), and Democrats (53/17) alike are in favor of shifting to that model for drawing district lines.

Roy Cooper:

Roy Cooper is off to a much better start as Governor than his two immediate predecessors. 48% of voters approve of the job he's doing, to 33% who disapprove. He's on solid ground with independents at 45/26, and his -32 approval with Republicans at 22/54 is actually well ahead of the curve for a politician across party lines in these heavily polarized times.

Cooper's numbers look particularly good when compared to what PPP found for Pat McCrory and Bev Perdue in August of their first terms. Cooper's the only one of the trio who hadn't become unpopular within 7 months of taking office. His net approval is 27 points better than McCrory's was at the same time, and 40 points better than Perdue's was at the same time.

| Governor    | Approval Rating, August of First Year in Office | Net Approval |
|-------------|---|--------------|
| Roy Cooper  | 48/33   | +15          |
| Pat McCrory | 39/51   | -12          |
| Bev Perdue  | 27/52   | -25          |

“Roy Cooper’s considerably more popular than either of his predecessors at this point during their time as Governor,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “He’s managed to largely keep his party base happy, do well with independents, and even win over some Republicans.”

Speaking of McCrory, voters say by a 44/37 spread that they think Cooper has been a better Governor than he was. Voters are closely divided in their feelings both about McCrory, and whether he should run again in 2020. 40% of voters see him favorably, to 41% with an unfavorable opinion of him. 41% of voters think he should run again for Governor in 2020, to 44% who think he should sit it out.

Notably, among Republican voters McCrory has a 66/15 favorability rating while Lieutenant Governor Dan Forest's is just 29/14.

National Issues:

-Donald Trump is unpopular in North Carolina, although his numbers are at least better than they are nationally. 44% of voters approve of the job he's doing, to 50% who disapprove. Only 37% of voters think Trump has succeeded in his signature promise to 'Make America Great Again,' with 52% saying they believe he has failed on that front. 49% of North Carolinians say they wish they could have Barack Obama back as President, to just 45% who are happier with Trump.

“North Carolinians don’t think Donald Trump is making America great again,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “They especially repudiate his efforts to repeal the Affordable Care Act. There’s little support in North Carolina for what Republicans in Washington are trying to do on health care.”

One issue that's not helping his image- or that of Republican Senators- in the state is health care. 47% of North Carolinians now support the Affordable Care Act, to only 38% who opposed to it. Repeal efforts have made it more and more popular. By contrast just 29% of voters say they support the health care repeal bill recently considered in Congress, to 51% who express opposition to that. 55% think the best path forward on health care is to keep the Affordable Care Act and make changes to it as necessary, to just 37% who think the best thing to do is repeal the ACA.

The health care vote could have long term implications for Thom Tillis. He already has weak approval numbers, with just 28% of voters approving of the job he's doing to 45% who disapprove. By a 16 point margin voters say they're less likely to vote in the future for someone who supported the health care repeal bill in Congress- 46% say being on the record in support of that makes them less likely to vote for someone, to only 30% who say it makes them more likely to vote for someone. That could be a problem for Tillis in 2020, and more short term for some Republican House members up for reelection next year, especially when the anger over health care is combined with the enthusiasm advantage Democrats are currently enjoying.

Public Policy Polling surveyed 657 registered voters on August 7th and 8th. The margin of error is +/- 3.8%. 80% of participants, selected through a list based sample, responded via the phone, while 20% of respondents who did not have landlines conducted the survey over the internet through an opt-in internet panel.
