Lynch romping in NH gov. re-election bid

Raleigh, N.C. – John Lynch was re-elected by a closer-than-expected margin last November, beating John Stephen by less than 8 points, his closest margin since his 2004 ouster of incumbent Republican Craig Benson by only 2 points. Lynch won by landslide margins of 47 and 43 points in 2006 and 2008. While he will not likely win by those proportions again, PPP's latest poll of his likely bid for a fifth term shows he should easily brush aside any Republican opponent.

Until last fall, Lynch had unsurprisingly been one of the most popular governors in the country, but in PPP's final poll of the 2010 election, his net job approval-disapproval margin had fallen to a still healthy +12, 51-39. That margin has since doubled to a +25. Now 58% approve, and only a third disapprove, tying him with California's Jerry Brown for the fifth most popular of the 35 currently serving governors on which PPP has polled. His improvement has come not with his own party but with Republicans and independents. Independents have moved from 54-34 to 64-27, and Republicans from 22-66 to 27-59.

By contrast, Lynch's potential challengers are all disliked. State Senate Majority Leader Jeb Bradley and activist Ovide Lamontagne have identical 29-35 favorable-unfavorable margins, and from there it is downhill. Former Senator John E. Sununu posts a 33-46 spread, and 2010 loser Stephen a 22-36.

With such a disparity in voters' views of Lynch and the various Republicans, it is no surprise he routs them all. Sununu comes closest, but still trails by 18 points, 54-36. Bradley and Lamontagne lag by identical 57-33 margins, and Stephen by 20 points more than his 2010 loss, 57-29. Lynch brings disapproving Democrats back to the fold, losing only 7-11% of them, while earning 13-20% of the GOP vote and winning with independents by 30-39 points.

"It's a sign that 2010 is in the rear view mirror when you see Lynch up 28 points on Stephen after earning only a single digit win against him in November," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "Things are looking up for Democrats in New Hampshire."

PPP surveyed 769 New Hampshire voters from March 31st to April 3rd. The survey's margin of error is +/-3.5%. Other factors, such as refusal to be interviewed and weighting, may introduce additional error that is more difficult to quantify.
