Presidential Race Tightens in New Mexico

Raleigh, N.C. -- Mitt Romney appears to have closed much of the 14 point gap between himself and President Obama that PPP measured in its last survey in April. Obama now leads by only 5 points in the land of enchantment, 49% to 44%. This comes along with a drastically reduced net approval rating for the president, down to even from a +9 mark 3 months ago. Romney's favorability has seen a positive shift from an abysmal -22 rating in that survey, and now stands at -9, 41% to 50%.

This change comes in spite of relatively level support for the president among Independents at +9, compared to +11 from the April poll. Instead the movement comes from a drop in the support he receives from within his own party. 21% of Democrats said that they preferred Romney in the presidential race, up from 12% in April.

Obama has also lost ground among both Hispanics and whites. With Hispanics, a group that Obama must win by large margins in several competitive states this year, Obama has gone from a 37 point lead to a 22 point lead.

PPP also examined the race with Libertarian candidate Gary Johnson in the mix. He draws 13% of voters, while reducing Obama's lead further to +4. While among partisan voters Johnson only takes a significant share of Republicans, he wins 24% of Independents, eliminating the President's lead with that group.

When the popular Governor Susana Martinez, who garners a +22 approval rating by herself, is included as Romney's running mate, the race tightens further, with the Republican ticket within one point of the Democrats, 48% to 47%. The Romney-Martinez ticket enjoys the support of 25% of Democrats.

"Barack Obama continues to lead in New Mexico," said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. "But the race is a lot closer than it's been in our previous looks at the state and a surprise selection of Susana Martinez as his running mate could put in in the toss up column."

PPP surveyed 724 New Mexico voters from July 13th to 16th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-3.64%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews.
