New Mexico for gay marriage

Raleigh, N.C. – New Mexico joins its northern neighbor Colorado and nearby Nevada in a growing list of Southwestern states in favor of same-sex marriage. When PPP last polled the state in June, voters were against legalizing it by a 42-48 margin. In the intervening half-year, opinion has moved eight points, with 45% now wanting gay couples to be able to legally marry in the state, and 43% still against it. The reason for the shift is that Democrats (from 34% to 28%) and independents (44% to 37%) have lowered their opposition by six or seven points. Further, two-thirds of New Mexicans also still favor these relationships being recognized with at least the legal equality of civil unions. That includes 78% of Democrats, 71% of independents, and 41% of Republicans.

First-term Gov. Susana Martinez's approval rating is down a tick from the last survey, but she is still one of the more popular governors in the country. 50% approve and 39% disapprove of her job performance, down from 52-37 in the June poll. The majority Democrats are holding at an identical 32-56 spread, an unusual level of crossover support in this environment, and Republicans have inched up a bit on her, from 84-10 to 85-8. The entire negative movement is with independents, from 51-32 to 48-38.

Despite being well-liked by her constituents, Martinez would not necessarily be a boon to the GOP presidential ticket as a running mate. Friday's release showed President Obama routing five potential Republican opponents, and only 23% say Martinez would make them more likely to vote for the GOP nominee, with 31% saying she would actually make them less likely, and 41% professing it would make no difference. Independents fall at 19-39.

New Mexicans do not particularly follow professional baseball or football. 38% cannot say who their favorite MLB team is, and 41% root for no one in the NFL.

PPP surveyed 500 New Mexico voters from December 11th to 13th. The margin of error for the survey is +/-4.4%. This poll was not paid for or authorized by any campaign or political organization. PPP surveys are conducted through automated telephone interviews. PPP is a Democratic polling company, but polling expert Nate Silver of the New York Times found that its surveys in 2010 actually exhibited a slight bias toward Republican candidates.
