Support For Gay Marriage Increases in Pennsylvania

Raleigh, N.C. – -A little more than a year after gay marriage became legal in Pennsylvania, PPP finds it with a record level of support in the state. 51% of voters say they favor it, compared to only 41% who are opposed. That represents a 26 point net increase in support since just 2011 when we found only 36% of voters in support of it and 52% opposed. Among independents the numbers are 59/31 in support of gay marriage, and among voters under 45 there's 66/29 support. The only thing making the numbers remotely close overall is continued 34/56 opposition among seniors.

Even though 41% of Pennsylvanians still say they're opposed to gay marriage, only 22% claim its being legal has actually had a negative impact on their lives compared to 78% who say it's either had a positive impact on their lives or none at all. That includes 63% of Republicans who grant that it's had no ill effect on their lives.

“Pennsylvania mirrors what we’re finding across the country,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “Very few people think that gay marriage becoming legal has had a negative impact, and in fact gay marriage has become more popular since being put into effect most places.”

Kathleen Kane's poll numbers have taken a nose dive since January. Now only 21% of voters have a favorable opinion of her compared to 38% with a negative one. Feelings about Kane were much more evenly divided when we polled the state in January and found her favorability at 31/33. Voters are still relatively indecisive about whether Kane should resign now- 35% say she should, 25% say she shouldn't, and 40% don't have an opinion either way. But if she gets indicted 65% of voters think she should resign, and already 56% say she shouldn't run for reelection next year.

55% of Pennsylvanians think funding levels of Amtrak should be increased to only 17% who believe they should be decreased, and 21% who think they're fine where they are now. Even among Republican voters 44% think Amtrak funding levels should be increased, while only 22% think they should be decreased.

Public Policy Polling® surveyed 799 registered voters from May 21st to 24th. The margin of error for the survey is +/- 3.5%. 80% of interviews for the poll were conducted over the phone with 20% interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don't have landline telephones.
