Virginians Favor Background Checks, Paid Sick Days

Raleigh, N.C. – A recent poll conducted in Virginia shows voters overwhelmingly support gun background checks and a legal minimum number of paid sick days for workers.

86% of respondents favor background checks for all gun purchases, while just 8% disapprove. This echoes recent numbers on the same question we've seen nationally and in North Carolina. Public opinion is also in favor of a law making all workers in the state receive a certain number of paid sick days. 64% are in favor of this measure, with 19% disapproving.

Similarly, Virginians support using federal funding to expand Medicaid to provide health insurance to very low-income individuals 56/30. They're in favor of the Affordable Care Act too, but just barely: 46% approve of the ACA, while 44% oppose.

“It really shows how far public opinion on Obamacare has come for it to be popular- even if narrowly- in a state like Virginia,” said Dean Debnam, President of Public Policy Polling. “It used to be universally unpopular in swing states. The perceived success of Obamacare can't be hurting the continued strong support for Medicaid expansion in the state either.”

Virginians are opposed to the flying of the Confederate flag. 35% of respondents support government buildings continuing to fly it, but 51% believe it should be taken down. Their opinions of racial imagery change when it comes to sports mascots: only 22% believe the Washington Redskins should change their name, while 66% are in favor of the name remaining the same.

The Supreme Court's decision on gay marriage has had little effect on Virginians' day-to-day lives; 61% report no impact at all from the ruling, while 12% report a positive impact and 27% a negative impact.

PPP surveyed 1,170 Virginian voters from July 13-15. The margin of error for the survey is +/- 2.9%. 80% of interviews for the poll were conducted over the phone with 20% interviewed over the internet to reach respondents who don't have landline telephones.
